Conference

Following the successful Shanghai Fintech Conferences in 2017 and 2018, the Shanghai Institute of International Finance Center (SIIFC) at the Shanghai University of Finance and Economics and the University of Edinburgh Business School are organizing the 3rd Shanghai Fintech Conference with Review of Corporate Finance Studies on 27 October 2019.

The objective of the conference is to present top quality theoretical and empirical academic research on Fintech and the application of artificial intelligence in finance research. The committee welcomes studies that provide cutting-edge insights into current research work. Specific topics and research questions can include, but are not limited to the interplay between financial technology, machine learning, artificial intelligence and capital markets, corporate finance, corporate governance, green finance, financial development as well as other related topics.

There is no registration fee for speakers and accommodation will be provided for free. The conference includes a high-profile forum in the morning which brings together key policy makers and top professionals. Academic sessions are in the afternoon.

DUAL SUBMISSION OPTION:

In the submission, authors should indicate if they wish their paper to be considered (at no extra fee) for publication by Review of Corporate Finance Studies (RCFS) under the Dual Submission Program. This is a “no-fault” submission option: if the RCFS reviews the paper and rejects it, the authors may submit it to any SFS journal at a later date as if it was never submitted. See <http://sfs.org/dualsubmissionpolicy/> for details.
